2017 outlook and strategy

Industry Backdrop

The global digital media spend is continuously increasing and should grow by +13% in 2017, to reach 205 billion dollars.**

The advertising industry is currently driven by awareness and branding budgets becoming digital performance driven. Brands are increasingly choosing to shift their offline branding budgets (television, billboards, print) to purely digital campaigns that pair brand awareness and performance. The shift of these budgets represents a massive growth opportunity for the Group.

This evolution requires the development of new technologies and expertise such as programmatic and artificial intelligence, with the support of Data and Analytics, becoming a strategic marketing tool for brands.

As a result of further technical advancements, changes in consumer behaviour and industry interest, the question of effectiveness and ROI of brand advertising is reaching its peak and brands are now demanding more transparent and efficient brand advertising spend to agencies.

Strategy

In 2017, the new Group Management will focus on a strong top line growth by developing its major client accounts, extending existing contracts and securing traditional budgets shifting to digital performance marketing.

The Group will also strongly focus on finding new international clients and has already started to initiate a restructuration of its clients' accounting teams.

In order to support organic growth during the year, NetBooster Group is going to develop its technical solutions and skills, strengthen its offering to become the most important data and analytics service provider. The new Group Management will also consider potential partnerships with agencies specialized in data science and data consulting.

Following a deep analysis of the Nordics region activity, NetBooster decided to gather its Nordic activities in Denmark to allow a better overall performance of the Group in 2017. Consequently, the Group has closed its Swedish office in February 2017 and started the restructuration of its Finnish office.
